The Bullet is published 6 times a year (February, April, June, August, October, December) by the New York State Rifle & Pistol Association, 713 Columbia Turnpike, East Greenbush, NY 12061. NYSRPA is a nonprofit organization affiliated with the National Rifle Association—for the purpose of promoting safety and education in the sport of shooting and hunting. The Bullet is sent to members of the New York State Rifle & Pistol Association. Published in the U.S. by PIA Management Services Inc., 25 Chamberlain St., Glenmont, NY 12077-0977.

NYSRPA Endorses Blakeman for Governor

The New York State Rifle & Pistol Association is proud to endorse Brue Blakeman for governorof New York state.

At a critical time for our state, New York needs leadership who respects the Constitution, supports law-abiding citizens, and recognizes that public safety is achieved by targeting criminals—not by restricting the rights of responsible gun owners.

Bruce Blakeman has demonstrated a commitment to defending individual freedoms and standing up for the principles that matter to millions of New Yorkers, including the right to keep and bear arms. He understands that the Second Amendment is not a privilege granted by government, but a constitutional right that must be protected.

For years, New York's firearms owners, sportsmen, and Second Amendment supporters have faced increasing restrictions and policies that unfairly burden responsible citizens while failing to address the real causes of crime. Bruce Blakeman has shown the courage to challenge government overreach and advocate for policies that respect both freedom and public safety.

The next governor of New York must restore balance, accountability and trust between citizens and their government. Bruce Blakeman brings the experience, leadership and determination needed to fight for a safer and stronger New York while protecting the rights guaranteed to every law-abiding citizen.

NYSRPA proudly supports Bruce Blakeman for governor, and the association urges New Yorkers who value freedom, responsibility and constitutional rights to join us in supporting his campaign or face another four years of Gov. Hochul.

President Trump Reiterates Support for National Right-to-Carry Reciprocity

by Cav. George L. Greco
NYC Director NYSRPA

During remarks to American Workers in Macungie, Penn., on June 23, 2026, President Donald Trump reiterated his support for National Right-To-Carry Reciprocity and NRA.

The president singled out NRA President Bill Bachenberg for recognition, and he noted how he's working with NRA.

President Trump pointed out, "The NRA … they have been with me right from the beginning."

The right to carry remains popular. According to a 2024 Marquette University Law School poll, an overwhelming 69% of respondents said they support the ruling. That ruling stemmed from the U.S. Supreme Court's 2022 decision in New York State Rifle & Pistol Association v. Bruen, a case brought by the New York State Rifle and Pistol Association and its president, Tom King.

Sanctuary city and state police departments have long maintained that they have the authority to determine who may, and who may not, possess and carry a concealed firearm in public, while continuing to permit their own officers and retired colleagues to do so.

News flash: This has changed and changing even more so.

It is remarkable that it can take up to six months to obtain a firearm license, while the state can issue a driver's license to an undocumented immigrant in as little as one hour.

A motor vehicle is more of a weapon than a firearm. To drive is a privilege; to possess and own a firearm is a right.

To quote University of Chicago Professor John Lott Jr.'s book title: "More Guns, Less Crime."

Women on Target

by Heather Linendoll
Women on Target Committee Chair (Hudson Falls)

The Women on Target program at Hudson Falls Fish & Game Club is dedicated to introducing women of all experience levels to the shooting sports in a safe, welcoming and supportive environment. Throughout the year, we offer monthly shoots featuring a variety of disciplines—including pistol, rifle, shotgun, archery and more—as well as special classes and events designed to help women build skills and confidence. Whether someone is handling a firearm for the first time or looking to expand their experience, our goal is to make every participant feel comfortable, encouraged and successful.

Our mission is to create opportunities for women to learn, grow and enjoy the shooting sports while fostering lasting friendships and a strong sense of community. With the support of experienced instructors and dedicated volunteers, participants gain hands-on instruction, safe firearm handling skills, and the confidence to continue their shooting journey.

We are proud to welcome women of all ages and backgrounds, and we look forward to introducing even more women to the traditions, camaraderie and lifelong enjoyment of the shooting sports.

A Review of the Bersa 1911 and 2011 Variants

by Mitch Eckler

Since its inception, shooters have loved, modified and molded the 1911 into their own definition of the ideal pistol. More than a century later, the platform remains one of the most copied, customized and reinterpreted handguns in the world. The single-stack 1911 market is mature, crowded and fiercely loyal. The double-stack 1911—often called the 2011-style pistol—has become just as competitive in its own way.

With so many manufacturers entering both spaces, it should not surprise anyone that Bersa wanted into the market. The more important question is whether the guns are actually good. After time with both the Bersa B1911 and the M2XI, the answer is yes, and maybe more so than some shooters expect.

The B1911 shipped

The Bersa B1911 is a serious step into a difficult American market filled with legacy names, semi-custom builders and imports at every price point. That is not an easy room to enter, but the pistol feels better prepared than the logo on the slide may suggest.

The test gun was the two-tone model with a stainless lower, black slide and red VZ grips. It keeps the classic 1911 outline while adding enough modern features to separate it from a basic GI-style pistol. Out of the box, the B1911 includes VZ grips, 25 LPI front strap checkering, front and rear cocking serrations, a Mec-Gar 8-round magazine, hard case, ambidextrous safety, Night Fision front sight and a blacked-out Novak branded rear sight. The slide and frame are forged 416 stainless steel, even on the blackened and blued models.

At around the $1,000 mark, Bersa is not trying to be the cheapest 1911 in the case. It is trying to deliver legitimate material value with a feature set that makes sense for modern shooters

Why I modified it

As good as the B1911 looked in stock form, the 1911 always invites the same question: how would I set this gun up for me? That led me to Kings River Custom, a newer 1911 builder preparing to launch its own small-parts line. Pairing a production Bersa with high-end parts from a shop earning its place in the market made sense for the story.

From Kings River Custom, I added a magwell, full-length guide rod, bushing, extended slide catch, extended safety, extended magazine release and its 8-round magazines. I also swapped the rear sight for a ledge-style Night Fision unit. I left the trigger and internal fire control parts alone because I wanted to preserve the core of the pistol.

It is worth saying that 1911 parts often require fitting. A file, patience and platform knowledge are part of the process. That is not a flaw in the gun or the parts. It is the nature of the 1911 itself.

Range work

After shooting 300 rounds, the Bersa proved accurate, reliable and easy to manage. The slide-to-frame fit was tight with almost no rattle, and the pistol felt quick and planted under recoil. The trigger broke at roughly 3 pounds, smooth with very little overtravel, although the overtravel stop needed Loctite after the first range trip.

The gun produced 2-inch groups at 50 feet, and repeatable hits at 82 yards on a Caldwell USPSA silhouette. HSM 230-grain XTP hollow points averaged 880 feet per second, while Winchester White Box averaged 869 feet per second and ran without drama. The favorite was the HSM.

The stock Mec-Gar magazine worked well, but the Kings River Custom 8-round magazine stood out with its strong tube, single witness hole, rounded feed lips, non-tilting follower, coated spring and pinned base pad. Horse & Oak Leather also supplied an excellent horsehide OWB holster that fit the pistol cleanly.

In the end, the Kings River Custom parts did not replace the Bersa's identity. They showed what the platform could become when tuned toward personal preference.

The M2XI shipped

The Bersa M2XI is the company's step into the double-stack 1911 market. That room is even more aggressive because buyers expect capacity, speed, accuracy, optics compatibility and refinement right out of the box.

The pistol tested here was the full stainless model, built around a 5-inch bull barrel, single-action trigger, 416 stainless steel slide and frame, polymer grip module, ambidextrous safety, flared magwell and Holosun K-Series optics cut. Bersa lists the M2XI Stainless at 30 ounces. With the Meprolight MPO-S optic and SureFire X300T installed, this configured pistol came in at roughly 35 ounces unloaded before magazine-specific variation. The MPO-S mounted directly, which is worth noting because the RMSc footprint can mount to a Holosun K cut, though that compatibility does not work in reverse.

Range work the M2XI

Unlike the B1911, I did not modify the M2XI with aftermarket, small parts. The only setup changes were the X300T and Meprolight MPO-S. This was an early demo gun, so the firing pin had been cut for trade-show use, and it was replaced with a factory firing pin. The recoil system was set up with a 14-pound spring for the 5-inch gun.

After that, there were no reportable malfunctions across 250 rounds. The trigger broke cleanly at 3.25 pounds, and the slide-to-frame fit was better than many shooters will expect at this price point. There was a file mark on the top of the safety plunger tube, and the pistol could probably benefit from a slightly longer barrel link, but those are small notes in context.

On the range, the M2XI was impressive. It shot flat, felt fast in the hands, and it made you want to keep pressing the trigger. It produced 2-inch groups at 50 feet and repeatable hits at 90 yards. The favorite load was HOP Munitions' poly-coated 147-grain 9mm round, which averaged 912.6 feet per second from the 5-inch barrel.

This pistol shipped with Mec-Gar's new 2011-pattern magazines, although my test gun used 10-round compliant magazines because testing took place in New York state.

Final thoughts

Bersa came out swinging with two pistols at aggressive price points for their respective markets. The B1911 is a strong traditional 1911 that deserves attention in stock form, and it responds well to thoughtful upgrades. The M2XI is fast, flat, accurate and more refined than its price point suggests.

Neither pistol feels like a gimmick. Both feel like serious entries from a company that understood it had to show up prepared. If you see a Bersa 1911 or M2XI in the gun case, take a closer look. It might surprise you, and you just might take it home.

All Firearm Licensing: A Change is Needed

by Cav. George L. Greco
NYC Director NYSRPA

Not very long ago, the New York State Troopers did not enforce policing in New York City. This changed in 2017-18 when Andrew Cuomo was governor—prior to his disgrace.

At that time, Mayor Bill DiBlasio, who had a hostile relationship with the NYPD, was in office, and police officers were not writing as many summonses. And, Cuomo needed money to fund all the liberal state programs. So, through an executive order, he instructed the state troopers to set up shop in all five boroughs of New York City, primarily to write summonses.

If a governor can take such an action regarding police movements in New York, then in my humble opinion, all licensing requirements should be under the jurisdiction of the state, and not carved out per county, village or city.

If this were the case, then maybe the requirements for all licensing would be more equal. As it stands now, in New York City an illegal immigrant—who cannot read or write English—can obtain a driver's license in about an hour. However, an American citizen—who resides within the city of New York—must wait six months to obtain a firearms license. What is wrong with this picture?

Driving an automobile is a privilege. And, an automobile is a more dangerous weapon than a firearm. However, possessing a firearm is a right, and a person is required to do more work to obtain access to that right.

Plus, the whole process of obtaining a firearm's license is a bit of a mystery. Within the NYPD licensing unit, there is a director of licensing. This is not commonly known. To the public, this person is nameless and faceless, but this person also is a deciding factor regarding who should receive or should not receive a firearm license. In other words, this person is like a Roman emperor. Thumbs up or thumbs down.

The current process is labor intensive and flawed, and it needs to be altered. Please contact your elected representatives in the state Assembly and Senate and ask them to encourage the governor to sign an executive order to take control of all firearm licensing. Remember: This is just a starting point because a governor doesn't need to obey these types of requests.

However, something needs to change because—in my humble opinion—the entire licensing department does not act in the best interest of the law-abiding tax paying individual who wants to legally possess and carry a firearm. Plus, I question the people who are connected to the department. Recently, a police officer in the 79th Precinct has been charged with a felony sex offense. As an off-duty NYPD officer, he was assigned to the department's legal bureau. Guess who else is a part of the legal bureau? The director of licensing!

Maybe it's time to add additional voices to those who control firearm's licensing in New York state? Maybe licensing should have its own civilian review board? I would be more than happy to volunteer as the commissioner for this board.

Regardless of the change, I ask you to contact your elected officials and voice your concern and advocate for a new firearm's licensing process.

Gov. Hochul's Latest Anti-Gun Rhetoric Targets the Wrong People

by Tom King

Every time Gov. Kathy Hochul stands before the cameras to announce another anti-gun initiative or deliver another speech blaming firearms for New York's crime problems, one question goes unanswered: When will Albany stop targeting the people who actually obey the law?

New York's law-abiding gun owners have endured decades of increasingly restrictive firearms legislation. They have complied with permit requirements, extensive background investigations, mandatory training, recertification mandates, registration requirements, and countless administrative hurdles. Yet, despite their unwavering commitment to following the law, they continue to be portrayed as part of the problem rather than part of the solution.

The New York State Rifle and Pistol Association believes the governor's latest anti-gun statements once again demonstrate a fundamental misunderstanding of both crime and constitutional rights. Criminals do not obtain firearms through the state's licensing process. They do not submit fingerprints, complete safety courses, or wait months for permit approvals. They steal firearms, purchase them illegally, or obtain them through criminal networks that have never been deterred by another law passed in Albany.

Instead of focusing on violent repeat offenders, illegal firearm trafficking, gang violence, and the revolving-door criminal justice system, Gov. Hochul continues to pursue policies that burden responsible citizens who are exercising a constitutional right. This strategy has become all too familiar: when violent crime dominates the headlines, Albany's response is another restriction on legal gun ownership rather than a serious effort to hold violent criminals accountable.

The Second Amendment is not a privilege granted by government. It is a fundamental right recognized by the U.S. Constitution and repeatedly affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. Like every constitutional liberty, it deserves respect—not political attacks designed to score points with national gun-control organizations.

Millions of Americans—including hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers—own firearms responsibly for self-defense, hunting, competitive shooting and recreation. They are veterans, police officers, first responders, small-business owners, parents and taxpayers. They safely store their firearms, train regularly, and understand the tremendous responsibility that accompanies firearm ownership. They should not be treated as suspects simply because they choose to exercise a constitutional right.

Public safety is best served by enforcing existing criminal laws against those who commit violent acts. That means aggressively prosecuting illegal gun traffickers, ensuring repeat violent offenders remain behind bars, strengthening efforts to combat organized criminal activity, and providing law enforcement with the resources necessary to target those who threaten our communities. These measures directly address criminal behavior without infringing upon the rights of responsible citizens.

The NYSRPA has consistently supported policies that punish criminals—not lawful gun owners. Every hour spent debating new restrictions on licensed firearm owners is an hour not spent addressing the real drivers of violent crime. New Yorkers deserve leadership that distinguishes between criminals who ignore the law and citizens who respect it.

Gov. Hochul's latest anti-gun rhetoric may generate headlines, but it will not make New York state safer. Real public safety requires confronting violent criminals, enforcing existing laws, and respecting the constitutional freedoms of law-abiding citizens. Until Albany embraces that approach, the cycle of political grandstanding and ineffective gun-control proposals will continue, while responsible New Yorkers bear the burden of policies that do little to stop crime and much to erode constitutional liberty.

Building for Tomorrow Starts Today

Every issue of the Bullet gives me the opportunity to reflect on where we've been and where we're headed. One thing continues to stand out to me. The New York State Rifle and Pistol Association is growing because our members believe in what we're doing, and they continue to invest in the future of this organization.

Whether you've been with us for decades or recently joined our ranks, thank you. Your membership is more than a card in your wallet. It is a commitment to protecting the Second Amendment in one of the most challenging states in the nation.

As we prepare for another busy season, our team is already hard at work. Gun show season will be here before we know it, and we'll once again be traveling throughout New York state, meeting members, welcoming new supporters, and sharing the work NYSRPA is doing every day. Those face-to-face conversations remain one of the best ways to grow our organization, and we look forward to seeing many of you along the way.

Membership growth continues to be one of our highest priorities. Every new member gives us a stronger voice. Every renewal reinforces the foundation we've built together. Through our NYSRPA 1871 Membership Corps, many of you already have stepped up by introducing friends, family members and fellow sportsmen to the association. Since this program started earlier this year, we've had 70 referrals, keep it up! That kind of grassroots support is making a real difference, and I encourage you to keep the momentum going.

If you've considered upgrading your membership, now is an excellent time. Life, Endowment, Patron, and Benefactor memberships provide lasting support that helps strengthen NYSRPA for years to come. These investments allow us to continue advocating for New York state's law-abiding gun owners, educating elected officials, communicating with members, and preparing for the legal and legislative challenges that lie ahead.

If upgrading isn't possible right now, consider donating. Every contribution—regardless of the amount—helps us continue our mission. As a small organization, we work hard to make every dollar count, and your generosity allows us to do more for our members and for the Second Amendment.

Most importantly, keep talking about NYSRPA. Invite someone from your local range to join. Share our updates on social media. Bring a friend to a gun show. Encourage a family member to become part of an organization that has been defending constitutional freedoms since 1871.

Everything we accomplish begins with members who are willing to get involved.

Together, we are building a stronger organization. Together, we are growing our voice. Together, we will continue defending the rights of New York's law-abiding gun owners for generations to come.

Thank you for standing up with us.

Faithfully a Second Amendment supporter.

HELP US

STRENGTHEN OUR NETWORK

The New York State Rifle & Pistol Association is seeking qualified attorneys to add to our SECOND AMENDMENT ATTORNEY REFERRAL LIST.

Every year, we hear from thousands of gun owners seeking guidance on legal issues. While we cannot provide legal advice, we do our best to help and often refer them to trusted attorneys.

WE NEED YOUR HELP!

HAVE YOU HAD GOOD REPRESENTATION BY AN ATTORNEY YOU CAN RECOMMEND?

ARE YOU AN ATTORNEY WITH EXPERIENCE IN:

- ✓ Second Amendment
- ✓ Criminal Defense (Fourth Amendment)
- ✓ Constitutional Law
- ✓ Other Relevant Practice Areas

PLEASE EMAIL US

with a description of your background, relevant cases, type of litigation or other legal representation, and the areas you serve.

2026 NYSRPA Candidate Questionnaire Results

The New York State Rifle & Pistol Association (NYSRPA) has completed its 2026 Candidate Second Amendment Questionnaire process.

NYSRPA sent its questionnaire to candidates seeking public office and asked candidates to respond to 11 questions addressing the Second Amendment, firearms ownership, and federal firearms legislation. Candidates were asked to answer YES, NO, or UNDECIDED and were given the opportunity to provide additional comments or explanations.

Thank You to the Candidates

NYSRPA would like to thank every candidate who took the time to complete and return our questionnaire.

We appreciate the candidates who took the time to review the questions, provide their positions, and participate in this process. Their responses allow New York voters to see where candidates stand on important Second Amendment and firearms-related issues.

How the Ratings Were Determined

To provide a consistent process, NYSRPA established the following rating methodology based on the responses submitted by each candidate:

- A — All 11 questions answered YES
- B — 1–2 effective NO responses
- C — 3–4 effective NO responses
- D — 5 or more effective NO responses
- * — Failed to submit a questionnaire

For purposes of the questionnaire review, an UNDECIDED response without an accompanying candidate explanation or comment is treated as a NO. An UNDECIDED response accompanied by comments or an explanation is subject to additional review.

Questionnaires received after the original requested return date are also included in the review and rating process.

Our Review Process

NYSRPA has completed its final review of the questionnaire responses and ratings prior to publication.

The published results reflect the positions stated by the candidates on the questionnaire. Ratings are based on the candidates' submitted responses and NYSRPA's established rating methodology. NYSRPA does not infer a candidate's position from campaign materials, endorsements, or public statements.

Candidates who believe their questionnaire responses have been recorded incorrectly should contact NYSRPA at info@nysrpa.org so that our records can be reviewed.

Reviewing the Results

The results are organized by office and district, county, or town, as applicable, to make it easier for New York voters to review the responses of candidates seeking to represent them.

We encourage voters to review the questionnaire results and candidates' stated positions as they consider the choices before them in the 2026 election.
